Nicholas Psychogios Joins Latitude 33 Planning & Engineering

Nicholas Psychogios

Latitude 33 Planning & Engineering has named Nicholas J. Psychogios as its newest associate principal. He brings 20 years of experience in the civil design and management of residential, commercial, utility, wetland restoration, and public sector projects to Latitude 33.

Psychogios joins Latitude 33 with proven leadership, management, and negotiating experience. He has previously worked for Fuscoe Engineering Inc. in both a project management and business development role. Prior to that, he worked at Project Design Consultants Inc. where his responsibilities included serving as the primary client contact, permitting, presentations and public hearings, negotiations, managing contracts and deliverables, due diligence, overseeing the construction bid process, engineering reports, and more.

His notable projects in Southern California include the San Dieguito Wetlands Restoration Project (San Diego/Del Mar), Rancho Coronado (San Marcos), Pala Mesa (Fallbrook), and the Creek District Master plan (San Marcos).
